7. Ensure Guantanamo detainees who would be at risk of serious human rights violations if returned to their country of origin are offered the opportunity to live in the USA, if they wish to do so, and work with other governments to ensure that other such detainees are offered protection in third countries.
8. Commit the US administration not to arbitrarily deprive anyone of their liberty (including by denying or interfering with effective judicial review), and immediately end the US government's opposition to full habeas corpus hearings for detainees in Guantanamo and similar situations.
9. Issue an executive order that the USA will not, under any circumstances, resort to torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment, as defined under international law.
10. Announce that the administration will not use any information obtained under torture or other ill-treatment in any proceedings, except against an alleged perpetrator of the abuse.

12. Order the declassification of all legal opinions and other documents authorizing or approving interrogation techniques and detention conditions that discuss whether the techniques or conditions are consistent with the national or international prohibition of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.
13. Ensure that criminal investigations into the programmes of rendition and secret detention operated by or on behalf of the US authorities are initiated.
14. Reject impunity for crimes under international law such as torture and other ill-treatment of detainees, and enforced disappearance.
15. Ensure that an independent commission of inquiry is established into all aspects of the USA's detention and interrogation practices in the 'war on terror'
16. Make known the name, nationality, present whereabouts, status and circumstances of detention of all those who are or have been detained as part of the programmes of rendition and secret detention.
17. Announce that the US administration will work to ensure that victims of human rights violations for which the US authorities may be responsible will have meaningful access to redress and remedy.
